Gospel Reflection

Brood of vipers; who warned you to flee from the retribution that is to come? One thing one can say about St John the Baptist is that nobody could accuse him of being shy or diffident! There are at least two themes in today's Gospel, both of which need addressing. The first concerns John's strange comment that God could 'raise children of Abraham from these stones'. What he is criticizing is the complacent attitude of many Jews that, because they were the physical descendants of Abraham, God would take them to heaven when they died. In other words, they thought retribution was for the Gentiles, not for the Jews; it was merely enough to be a member of the club and everything else would be fine. This is an attitude that is sometimes to be found also among Catholics; some believe that it is merely enough to have the label 'Catholic' to be saved, or even the simple label 'Christian'. When asked whether he went to Mass on Sunday, the Italian taxi driver famously remarked 'sono Cattolico, non fanatico'; I am a Catholic, not a fanatic. Well, says St John, that simply is not enough, which brings us on to the next point.

John's baptism was about repentance but, he observes, it is not enough simply to make the gesture of repentance, without the internal and external actual turning away from sin that the gesture implies. John thinks that the Pharisees and Sadducees coming to receive his baptism of repentance have no real intention of turning away from their sins, but will simply carry on as before, though with the added kudos of having publically beaten their breasts and had people think them to be holy. No, says St John, it is not enough to make empty gestures; the repentance has to be real and to bear fruit in good works or, he warns, the coming Messiah will cut down those barren fruit trees and cast them into the fire.

The message of today's Gospel, then, is a stern one. Our faith, our repentance, has to be real, active and fruitful if we intend that our Lord will recognize us as true children of Abraham, our father in faith, when he comes to take us home.

Magnificat - There are copies of Magnificat available for sale in the shop. This booklet contains all the mass readings and devotional readings for a month. It is pocket size and is very popular.

Do you or does someone you know have a talent for managing people and a desire to help young people in your community?

5th Caterham Scout Group is a thriving, dynamic and very well-structured organisation of Beavers, Cubs and Scouts, based at Sacred Heart Church in Caterham. The success of our group is thanks in no small part to the work of our late Group Scout Leader (GSL), Paul Lovell, whose passing has left a need for someone to help co-ordinate the volunteers who run the group's three sections. The voluntary role is highly flexible and requires someone, male or female, who can liaise with: the Scout Association at District level, the group's executive committee, the section leaders and with the church, which sponsors the group. The successful candidate would not need to attend the weekly Beaver, Cub and Scout meetings and would receive comprehensive support and training from the District. Spiritual Gifts of Ageing from Friday 6th January 2017 to Sunday 8th January 2017

The actress Bette Davis famously said - ageing is not for sissies! But what is it for?

Its so easy to see growing older as simply a succession of losses: of the looks and strength of your youth; of the careers, roles, status that have defined our adult identities; of fitness, health, memory...a period of decay and decline. But this is a mistake! In fact, what we lose as we age are only the material things that so easily dominate busy lives. Psychological research identifies these losses as necessary, if we are to move from a focus on the material to the spiritual: things we must let go of if we are to complete the human development journey into the peace and joy, the serenity that is spiritual fulfilment.

This retreat explores the way in which ageing invites us to re-align from the material to the spiritual, and the ways in which human psychology can support that journey. And in the process, ageing is revealed as one of God's most wonderful gifts - if only we embrace it! £185.00 Residential / £98.00 Non Residential
